AI-Powered Health Monitoring & Early Disease Detection System

Project Synopsis: Every year, millions of people lose their lives to diseases that could have been prevented with early detection. According to WHO, nearly 18million people die globally from cardiovascular diseases annually, while in India alone, over 1.5 million deaths occur due to delayed diagnosis and lack of timely medical support. These numbers reflect a painful truth—lives are not lost due to the absence of treatment, but due to the absence of early warning. Most victims had subtle symptoms, but either forgot to act on them or failed to recognize their seriousness.

My project addresses this challenge through an AI-powered health monitoring system that integrates with wearable devices. Unlike regular smart watches that only display vitals, this system uses a 7-billion parameter AI model trained on medical data sets to analyse patterns in real time. It not only records vital signs such as heart rate, blood pressure, oxygen saturation, and temperature, but also predicts the onset of conditions like fever, infections, or cardiac events before they become life-threatening.

For instance, if an elderly person living alone develops an abnormal heartbeat while asleep, the system will instantly alert their family and, if needed, connect to emergency services. Such proactive intervention can prevent tragedies and reduce the burden on hospitals.

The unique strength of this project lies in its AI integration—making it smarter, more accurate, and more compassionate than conventional health trackers. It transforms wearables from passive recorders into active guardians of health. By adopting this system nationwide, India can pioneer affordable AI-driven preventive health care, saving countless lives and setting an example for the world.

Agri Safe Chaff Cutter

Project Synopsis: Chaff cutter machines are widely used for animal fodder. But many accidents happen when the operator hands get too close to the blades leading to serious injuries.

Proposed solution- My idea is a smart safety system using a magnetic reed sensor. The operator wears gloves with a small magnet working. When the hand goes near the blade, the magnet triggers the reed switch. This instantly cuts power to the motor and rings a buzzer alarm.

Extra safety- To restart the machine, a manual reset button must be pressed. This ensures maximum safety.

Conclusion- This is a low cost, simple and life- saving idea to protect farmers from accidents.

Aggressive Dog Deterrent Device

This project presents a dog deterrent device that uses ultrasonic sound waves and flashing lights to safely discourage aggressive or stray dogs without causing the many harm. The working principle of the device is based on the audible range differences between humans and dogs. By generating ultrasonic sound waves above the upper human hearing limit- the device creates a noise that is irritating and uncomfortable for dogs but completely inaudible and harmless to humans.

When activated, the ultrasonic waves travel outward and disturb the dog making it retreat rather than approach aggressively. This ensures humane non-violent method of deterrence.

Outstanding Cultural Performance
